The diver dies without air to breathe. The consumptive dies without lungs to breathe the air, or of lungs rendered incapable of breathing by disease. The blood as it flows in and out of the lungs indicates the consumptive's progress. As the lungs grow weaker less oxygen is inhaled and the blood changes from scarlet to purple. Oxygen is the life of the blood as the blood is the life of the body.

The effect of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery upon weak lungs is to strengthen them, to enable the full oxygenation of the blood, arrest the progress of disease, and heal the inflamed tissues. Lung diseases have been and are being cured by "Golden Medical Discovery," in cases where deep-seated cough, frequent hemorrhage, emaciation, weakness, and night-sweats have all pointed to a fatal termination by consumption.

"Some years ago I was almost a helpless victim of that dread disease—consumption," writes Mr. Chas. Fross, of M. of Sika, White Co., Ind. "I was confined to my room for several months; my friends and neighbors had given up all hope of my recovery, until one day a friend advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and after I had taken the contents of the second bottle I began to improve. After taking six bottles I was, I honestly believe, delivered from the grave and entirely cured. I am now a strong and hearty man."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

CLOSING DAY AT OREGON STATE FAIR

Oregon contributes a great portion of this vast sum, and will receive the least participation of its benefits. The accumulation has been much more rapid, than was anticipated, and it will be 10 years before it will be exhausted, in view of the delays and care in selecting the feasible sites for reservoirs, and in surveys and construction of the great and enduring works necessary. It may be advisable that further sales of the public lands should for some years be set apart for good roads constructions, as was the early policy of the nation. This suggestion should meet the approval of the people of Oregon, where the public land sales exceed that of any other state or territory, and where the common roads are, perhaps, as bad as they are in any other state, and require more aid than the state and counties can possibly contribute. This suggestion is with the proviso that no aid can be secured by direct appropriation.

Brownlow Bill.

Another attempted relief in this direction, and perhaps the most hopeful, is that of the Brownlow and Latimer bill in congress, providing for an appropriation of $24,000,000 for good roads construction, to be distributed among the several states in proportion to population—except that the minimum to any state shall not exceed $250,000, providing that such state shall raise an equal sum for the same purpose. To Oregon this would provide a half million dollars for good roads.

This action in congress is prompted by the awakened public spirit among the people. It is a revival of the sentiment in this country of 100 years ago. I am glad to see it. The Latimer bill has so far progressed that it has been agreed to by the senate committee, and on the senate calendar. Petitions are pouring into congress from all portions of the country, urging the enactment of this relief. The most encouraging sign comes from the great state of The east on government freight was recently memorialized congress to pass the Brownlow roads bill, in these earnest words: "Believing in the principle of national, state, county and town corporation in the construction of main highways, not only for the benefit of the agriculturist, but for the benefit of the consumers of agricultural products, and also believing in the great proposition that the expenditure of public money for the purpose of improving the internal wealth and commerce of the nation is of equal importance to the spending of money on rivers and harbors, heartily endorse the provisions of the Brownlow bill."

Other legislatures have likewise given expression. In these bills the states are to designate the roads to be improved, and to raise one-half of the expense, and, if found worthy, plans are drafted and surveys made by the government.

Good Roads Aid Our Foreign Commerce.

Good Roads Now the Nation's Duty.

Give us cheaper and better land roads at home, from the farm to the ship, and we shall more certainly secure and hold the new markets of half the world, and hold our prosperity by doing so. To our nation it is a vital question, and today no greater one confronts us in our industrial operations. Once the government enters on good roads improvement, it will never go back. It will be even more popular than river or harbor improvements—as they benefit only in certain portions, while good roads reach every community in the land. Of the revenues contributed for government support the farmers contribute the most. They now receive the least in direct national expenditures. With good roads improvement they will enjoy a general benefit.

In conclusion I announce my support to any legislation that will contribute a large share of our surplus revenues to the roads of our country. In that way we shall add to our prosperity, to our defense, and to the everlasting glory and renown of our magnificent republic.
